On give me not the studied forms, The pencilings of art, Of friends whose memory fairest seems

When we forever part: The eye wears not its living fire, Nor check its natural hue; And there's a coldness in the gaze The loved one never knew.

Although they oft are beautiful, The features never wear The greeting smiles of happiness, Or Love's benignant care; No kindred glance returns our own, Nor eye with pleasure beams, But all is silent and as dim, As visions in our dreams.

Away with these! they never bring The loved one to our view. In form as fair and beautiful As memory's pencil drew;

They move not in life's varied scenes, To guide us in our part, Nor lead our thoughts beyond the earth Like Pictures of the heart.

Then give me of my cherished friends The forms that never fade--Such as Affection only paints. With Memory's lights and shades:

For these can cheer me onward still, Through life and all its cares, And guard me with their angel wings, And name me in their prayers. D. F. R.

MR. CLAY'S VISIT TO LOUISIANA. - We find the fellowing in the New-Orleans Bee, in reply to an invitation to Mr. Clay to visit Memphis:

ASHLAND, September 18, 1942. Gentlemen: I received your favor, transmitting the resolutions of a Whig meeting at Raleigh, for the county of Shelby, inviting me, when on my voyage to New-Orleans, to visit Memphis and partake of the civilities and hospitalities of my friends. I am truly thankful for the friendly invitation, and I should derive unfeigned pleasure in meeting them. whom I regard, in some measure, as my late constituents. But I apprehend there is some misconception as to the object of my intended visit to New Orleans. It is one purely of business and of health apart from all political motives or considerations whatever. I have regretted that my purpose has got, I know not why or wherefore, into the newspapers, without any explanation of my real intent

I design going to Louisiana some time in November, with the views that I have stated. Whether it will be in my power to stop and tarry any time in Memphis, I am unable now to say. You know one is wholly dependent upon the movement of the boat in which he embarks. Should they admit of my stopping at Memphis, I will embrace with great pleasure, the opportunity of exchanging friendly salutations with any of the citizens of Shelby county or Tennessee, who may honor me with that ceremony. Beyond this contingent promise, I cannot make any engagement.

In any event, I pray you to convey my gratefu acknowledgements to those whom you represent. and accept assurances of the sincere regard and high esteem of

Your friend and obedient servant, H. CLAY

TA Sheriff named Welsh, on the 28th ult. went to apprehend a noted negro scoundrel named Province, near the Sabine. The thing had been attempted half a dczen times before, without success. Welsh came near the house, and Province. with a rifle, ordered him to stop. He did so, read his warrant and seeing Province about to fire, shot him with a gun loaded with buckshot.

HEAVY DANAGES .- In the Circuit Superior Court for Ohio County, Va. on the 26th, in the case of Dr. S. P. Hulliken against James M'Lure for slander, the jury gave a verdict for the complainant of $3000.

A man named Clifford, at Fairfield, Vt., on the 16th, attempted to cross a pond with his wife and child in a small boat. The boat was upset and his wife and child were drowned. He made no effort to save them, but coolly walked two miles and told a neighbor of their death. This and other suspicious circumstances have led to his arrest on the charge of wilful murder.

MISSOURI CAPITOL -It seems that a claim is about to be set up to a portion or the whole of Jefferson City, the Seat of Government of Mis- to souri. The following is from the Kaskaskia Republican: "LUCK'S A MISFORTUNE .- We have just received information from a source to be relied upon, that a man named John Baptiste De Lisle, was the owner of 270 arpents of land upon which the whole of the city of Jefferson, in Missouri, is built; and that in 1811 or '12, he left Vincennes on a keel for Pittsburg, at which place he enlisted in the United States Army, and only returned a short time since to Vincennes. He had not been heard from since the time he left Vincennes until he returned. His sisters, acting under the belief that he was dead, sold the land to Major Barry, of Missouri. Since the return of DeLisle, Mr. Lesieur and Major Dawson, of New Madrid, have purchased from him the land and intend to set up their claims toit immediately. Mr. Lesieur and Major Dawson can go to Jefferson City this winter and say to the members of the Legislature : gentlemen, this is our house, " take up your knapsacks and put."

Dr. Kennicott of Oxford, a man remarkable for his love of good eating, having discovered a remarkably fine fig upon a tree, in the garden belonging to his college, was determined to apprepriate it to himself, and for that purpose, as it was not quite rise, fastened a piece of paper upon it, on which he wrote "Dr. Kennicott's fig." One of the fellows of the college observed it, and being a punster, he ate the fig, and in its place wrote on another piece of paper, which he hung there, "A fig for Dr. Kennicott."

ROGUES IN AND ROGUES OUT.

The following piece of satire by an unknown author we consider first-rate, for the Phenix Bank :

"Friend in the grogram coat, with staff and spear,
"Friend in the grogram coat, with staff and spear,
What is your business—what your duty here?"
"To watch the baok!" "The bank! why, tell me, pray, Think you the bank is like to run away?"
"No, no—but rogues and theeves, these cursed chaps,
Might break the locks and doors, and steal, perhaps:
And I am paid for s anding here all right.
To catch or frighten them, and keep all right."
"Well, since you're paid for 't, watchman, stand thy post,
And see no stiver of the cash is lost:
At the same time, nermit me, friend, to doubt.

And see no stiver of the cash it lost.
At the same time, permit me, friend, to doubt,
Such mighty danger from the rogues withoutI'd think the money better far applied.
If you were paid for catching logues inside."

ROMANCE OF REAL LIFE .- Some years ago, says a foreign journal, the captain of a corsair carried off the wife of a poor wood-cutter residing in the neighborhood of Messina. After detaining her for several months on board of his vessel, he landed her on an island in the South Seas, wholly regardless of what might befal her. It happened that the woman was presented to the savage monarch of the island, who became enamored of her. He made her his wife, placed her on the throne, and at his death left her the sele sovereign of his domains. By a European vessel which recently touched at the island; the poor wood-cutter has received intelligence of his wife. She sent him presents of such vast value, that he will probably be one of the wealthiest individuals in Sicily until it shall please her majesty, his august spouse to summon him to her court.

F The St. Louis Reporter, of the 20th inst. says: "Samuel Hobart, editor of the Mound City absquatulated on Tuesday last. He left his creditors in the lurch, and shamefully abandoned his wife. He took with him some money and five negroes, and left the partner of his bosom penny-

IMPORTANT FOR RAILROADS -A new brake has been invented by Mr. Thornton, civil engineer, and one of the late contractors of the London and Brighton Railway. The experiments are very satisfactory. ## STOVES.

STOVES.—HOWE'S Patent Stove.

for heating Parlors, Halls, &c., and there probably is not a Stove for sale in this city to at contains (in so small a compass) all the advantages this Stove does, for neatness of appearance, economy in fuel, and for emitting a soft and pleasant heat, it is not surpassed by any, and equalled by very few, if any; and while I am about it. I should like to call the attention of the public to those Stores for sale in this market that are only got up to look at, and not for service and utility; there is considerable crocking about hollow bases or hearths, to warm or dry the feet upon. I would merely ask the question, would a hearth or base made of sheet iron stand much putting feet about it for that purpose. I think not, therefore I would caution the public to buy such Stoves only as have been well tested, and tried. This Stove has a cast from hearth and two doors in front, one for putting in coal and the other to show the fire, thereby giving a very cheerful appearance, and at the same time brings an open fire convenient for warming at drying the feet. It may be seen at the Fair next week; and its for sale at the Manufactory, No. 259 Water-street, and also at 23 and 125 Bowery, and at Powell & Vining's. Brooklyn.
